Terroir of the flag-bearing Climat MONT DE MILIEU

Right bank, the Climat MONT DE MILIEU

MONT DE MILIEU sits on the Southern flank of a hill sheltered by a wood from the North wind. With an averagely steep and regular South, SouthEast-facing slope, it enjoys the sun all day long and the grapes ripen easily here. This Climat is open and airy, and there is no rush to harvest its grapes which ripen very well.

With lovely homogenous kimmeridgian subsoil, this Climat presents a happy combination with multiple components: limestone clay and small limestone pebbles. The colluviums in the lower part ensure a good water supply that favors long maturation.
